E came down for lunch at the office and we attended to a variety of official engagements.

Henry S. Morgan called on me this afternoon. He has been in London for some days seeing old friends, including his business associates a Morgan Grenfell & Co.

Thomas Kanza, Charge d'Affaires of the Congo, stating he had urgent business to transact with me, came in today.

The rumor [redacted] is afloat that Kanza was conniving against Adoula, and perhaps entertains the hope of replacing him.

The burden of his talk with me was that American interests, unspecified as to name and origin, were attempting to place him in a false position of being disloyal to his chief. He said he [redacted] saw Adoula a short time ago when he was transiting England on his way home. The Prime Minister asked him whether, if

The Ambassador of Nepal, Shri Kali Prasad Upadhyay, called on me this morning. He is a friendly fellow, educated in India, a country for which he has little use. He was once Attorney General and later Judge of the Supreme Court of Nepal. He is not not only the Nepalese Ambassador in the UK, but also Ambrassador to France, Germany, Sweden, and the Netherlands. He went to the United States in mid-September for the opening of tne UN General Assembly.

He understood that this matter was beyond my purview. Actually, I received a long information telegram on the subject today from Washington, where it is being handled.

and Lord Mountbatten. Mountbatten, commenting on the custom of saying grace, observed that he preferred the Royal Navy version "Thank God". It was a fine show, but the speech period a bit long. Lemnitzer read at great length a statement on SHAPE's present and future. After he was eulogized by Marshal of the RAF, Sir William Dickson, Frank Roberts, British Ambassador to Germany, spoke rather briefly and the proceedings terminated with a brilliant and witty contribution by Mountbatten.

Ralph Hetzel, Acting President of the Motion Picture Association of America, called on me. He was with me in the Department of Commerce in 1947, and is a thoroughly competent, superior fellow.

I went with George Ball to call on Edward Heath at the Board of Trade. There was a considerable representation on their side and on ours.

in Palm Beach. Wallis was in excellent looks, and again nobody would possibly guess from her appearance that she is more or less a contemporary of mine.

I went to the office this afternoon, to write a score or more of long-hand letters to British government officials and others who had sent their condolences. We will eventually acknowledge some thousands of letters and telegrams.

Tonight we went to a quiet dinner at the Caccias, with [redacted] Helen and Michael Adeane. The Adeanes, as they always are, have been extraordinarily helpful in connection with participation by the Queen and members of the Royal Family in various ceremonial exercises. Since the Queen's doctors will not allow her to attend the services at St. Paul's Cathedral on Sunday afternoon, she has invited 350 to 400 American Servicemen stationed in England to attend ceremonies in the Royal Chapel at Windsor on Sunday morning. She also has arranged for them to go through the State Rooms at Windsor Castle afterwards.

We also took a gander at conditions in Yemen and Cambodia, and at the dangers of Indonesian ambitions.
